Charitable fact finder

Based on responses to the questions below, we can help you create a charitable giving plan that matches your client's giving needs and interests.

Starting the conversation

- Have you considered giving to charity – either while living or upon death?
- If yes, are you satisfied with what you give? Would you like to give more?
- If no, would you consider leaving dollars to charity if it would not hurt you or your family financially? What if it could help you or your family financially?
- Would you like to continue giving to charities after death?
- Would you be interested in creating a giving plan that has a lasting impact (either during your life or after death)?

Exploring ways to give

- What types of charitable giving are currently part of your giving program?
- Are any charities named in your will?
- Do you have any life insurance, annuities, or IRAs that could be given to charity as beneficiary proceeds – all or a portion?
- Do you have any appreciated assets (securities or real estate) that you resist selling because of capital gains taxes?
- Do you have assets set aside that you would like to give in exchange for ongoing income payments?
- Would you be interested in making a future substantial gift to charity through smaller, annual gifts that are tax deductible?
- How do you want your estate to be shared among family, church/charities and the government? Is there a set amount or upper limit that you want to leave your family?

Determining charitable interests

- Do you actively volunteer with any organizations?
- What organizations/institutions have provided the greatest influences in your life? (e.g. church, school/college, community)
- Do you have favorite charities? What about them appeals to you the most?
- Would your financial support to any organization/charity be missed if it ceased?
- What entities would you be most interested in helping? Are there societal issues you wish to address?
- Fine-tuning the Donor's Charitable Plan
- Do you want a giving plan that provides for a charity during your lifetime and/or at your death?
- Do you want the charity(ies) to receive a lump sum upon your death or do you want to provide ongoing support?
- Do you want to give anonymously or by name? In memory or in honor of someone?
- Do you want to support multiple charities?
- Do you want to give to a certain program or target a specific geographic area?
- Do you want the flexibility to select different charities over time?
